GRIFFITHS' FUNERAL IS WELL ATTENDED

Many Friends Attend Final Services Over the Body of the Late Edwin Griffiths. Janesville, Dec. 27.—Funeral services for Edwin Griffiths were held yesterday afternoon at two o'clock in the M. E. church. The funeral was one of the largest ever held in Janesville, the seating capacity of the church being insufficient to accommodate the many who wished to attend. The local Woodmen lodge of which he was a member attended in a body. The Rev. T. W. North preached the sermon and spoke impressively on the uncertainty of life. The song service was rendered by Mrs. P. C. Wilder, Mrs. John Schelbel and J. P. Davis, who sang "Some of These Days," "Hail of Gailies" and "Dear My God to Thee." The numerous floral offerings told of the esteem in which he was held. The funeral was conducted by the Woodmen society and a beautiful display of carnations and roses by the Evansville Produce Co., who have been a partner in the firm. The pallbearers were Sylvester Purinton, Charles Decker, Lou Follows, George H. Howard, Chester Miller and Fred Follows. The absence of Orlando Griffith, father of the deceased, lent pathos to the services. Owing to the lateness of the train he failed to arrive from California in time for the funeral and informant will not take place until this afternoon at two o'clock. Among the many out of the city who were in attendance at the funeral were Mr. Griffiths' friends, a commission merchant of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Eyrer, Mr. and Mrs. H. Eyrer, D. Mann and son, Charles Eyrer and wife, Mrs. Hodge, Mr. and Mrs. York and Miss Hinch, all of Beloit, Mr. and Mrs. Tyler of Edgerton, Atty. Claude Hendricks of Janesville, A. W. Dibble of Madison, and Herman Wood of Milwaukee. The ladies of the Congregational church will give their annual New Year's dinner and supper in the church parlors next Wednesday. Dinner will be served from twelve o'clock until all are served and supper at 5:30. Following is the menu: Roast turkey with dressing, mashed potatoes, salad, cranberry sauce, pickles, white bread, mince and apple pie, cheese and coffee. Benjamin Johnson and J. Allen, Jr., were brought before Judge Justice Frank Devendorf this morning, charged for assault and battery, and the latter for drunkenness and disorderly conduct. It appears that on Wednesday evening, Johnson, who resides with his mother on Madison St., while under the influence of liquor, so abused and pumiled her that she was badly, though not seriously, injured. He was sentenced to the Rock County Jail for six months, and Allen was fined ten dollars and costs. Randall Rowley of Chicago, and his brother, Julius Rowley, of Iowa school, Lima, Indiana, are spending the week here as guests of their aunt, Mrs. Emmeline Rowley. Miss Edith Benway of Chicago, is visiting at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Frank Franklin. Clarence Vreeland of the Pioneer drug store, force-receives for Richard Center tomorrow to remain over New Year's. Mr. and Mrs. L. Hugley are spending a few days at their farm in Albany.

CLINTON MAN HURT BY RUNAWAY TEAM

Is Struck by Dray Drawn by Runaway Team and Narrowly Escapes Serious Injury. Clinton, Dec. 27.—Tuesday evening Frank Anderson and his wife were out at the train by a large delegation of young people, all of whom were well supplied with rice, banners announcing the fact that they had been married four weeks and were home for a Christmas dinner, etc. As the train was late the supply of rice was divided up amongst all of the matrimonial prospects until the train arrived. Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Smith of Chicago spent their Christmas here. Mr. and Mrs. Terpin of Chicago were home for Christmas. Earnest Warner and family are home for the holidays. Robert Wheeler, wife and son of Madison spent their Christmas here. Joe Little and family are holiday visitors. Orris C. Smith left on Christmas day for western Nebraska, where he is to assist the government as engineer in a reclamation project on the North Platte river country; a good position and in just the line of work he enjoys. It was one of the largest and finest crowds of the season that gathered at the line farm residence of Dr. R. K. and Mrs. Latta, just north of town, on Monday evening. The party was given by the parties mentioned as a reception for their son, Warren, and his wife, who were recently married at Payson. There was delightful music and a very pleasant social time. Ice cream, cake and coffee was served. Thursday afternoon P. C. Bradley's large dray team got frightened at the

GOLF CLUB OFFICERS ARE RE-ELECTED

Douquets Were in Order at the Annual Meeting Last Night—Season's Showing Was the Best Ever Made. All of the old officers—President W. G. Wheeler, Vice President F. H. Penworth, Secretary J. L. Wilcox, Treasurer Harry B. Haggart, and Collector Charles Gage—were re-elected at the annual meeting of the Shanks school Golf club, held at the Valentine hotel last evening. Votes of thanks were numerous. One was extended to the house committee, composed of Mrs. Frank Haggart, Mrs. W. G. Wheeler, Miss Mae Valentine, Charles Gage, and Geo. McKoy, for the splendid showing of $155.39 in the bank on Dec. 27 after giving 13 dances and several afternoon card parties during the season as well as re-stocking the clubhouse with linen, dishes, and furniture; and it was not only accompanied by full acquiescence in the committee's recommendation that the balance be allowed to remain in the treasury until such time as the executive committee should see its way clear to wire the clubhouse for electric lights, but was also coupled with an earnest entreaty to the members to serve another season. Appreciation was also formally expressed of Norman Carle's free tender of the use of the Calabrian rooms and Central hall for a supper or social at any date that the club may decide upon; and the club 4 to take advantage of the offer in the near future—as well as of the providing of a meeting place by Valentine Bros. President Wheeler in a review of the financial status of the club, showed that the total revenue from the season was $1,688.75 and from the bus $250. The club secretary borrowed $250, making $1,938.75 which had been expended during the past season. The running expenses were $1,405.36; the estimated taxes would be $140. During the past year a barn had been built at a cost of $113.11; old bills and notes amounting to $240 had been paid; a motor had been installed at a cost of $140 and there had been other incidental expenses which made a total additional outlay of $559.93. During the 1908 season the running expenses will be $1,100 or more, a new horse will have to be purchased at a cost of $175; a cistern will have to be built for the greenhouse; the roof of the clubhouse reshelving at a cost of $100; painting done that will cost not less than $50; the $250 note taken care of; and in all probability a building to shelter the 15 or 20 automobiles owned by members will have to be erected at a cost of not less than $100. So the total expenses will be $2,095.96 with a revenue of $1,877. In view of this situation he believed that relations with the Country Club should undergo some sort of a readjustment. Thousands of dollars have been spent by the Golf club in permanent improvements on the grounds and yet the Country Club members, according to the present arrangement, can enjoy all the privileges save the use of the links without cost, or can sell their stock to outsiders and the outsiders can come into the club for a $1 instead of a $10 initiation fee and have their dues as active members of the club reduced $3 a year. The credit of $3 should at least be allowed for a share share of stock, in any individual instance. On motion, a committee consisting of President Wheeler, A. P. Burnham, A. M. Valentine, H. S. McGinnis, and H. G. Carter, was appointed to confer with the Country Club at the January meeting with regard to a possible change in relations along the lines suggested. Treasurer Haggart having informed the club that the auditing committee consisting of Wilson, Lane, Frank Jackson, and Francis Grant, appointed a year ago, had never looked over the books, a new one consisting of Frank Jackson, A. J. Harris, and H. H. Bliss was appointed with the injunction to "try to do better."

Mrs. Mary Gregovich, of Phillipsburg, Montana, under date of Nov. 25, 1899, writes: "I had typhoid fever this summer, consequently was losing my hair terribly, and my head in places was perfectly bald. New-bro's Hairpencil had just come into use in Phillipsburg, and the doctor strongly recommended it to me. After 3 or 4 applications my hair stopped falling out, and is coming in again quite thick. I used to be troubled greatly with dandruff, of which I am now quite cured." Kill the dandruff germ with Hairpencil. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Hairpencil Co., Detroit, Mich. Two sizes, 60 cents and $1.00. J. P. Baker, Special Agent.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, Dec. 28, 1897.—A fire got out on the prairie near the residence of Mr. Guy Wheeler this afternoon, and a messenger came to town to notify Mr. W., who was attending the annual meeting of the Agricultural Society, that his fence and buildings were endangered.

Annual Meeting.—The annual meeting of the Rock County Agricultural Society was held in the court room this afternoon. The question of selling the grounds of the society and surrounding the organization was under discussion as we go to press.

A Pleasant Time.—The young people and children connected with Christ Church have had a delightful time at Wheeler's Hall this afternoon. After some hours of free and easy frolic, a beautiful repast of delicacies was served to them by some of the older members of the congregation, who evidently greatly enjoyed the manifest pleasure of the little ones.

The Next Lecture.—The Young Men's Association have been exceedingly fortunate—we think—in securing the Rev. Mr. Milburn—known as the blind preacher—for a lecture. It will not be forgotten by the community that his lecture here last season was regarded as one of the most eloquent and entertaining of the course. He speaks in the Congregational church on Monday evening, January 6th. Subject—English Round Beef, or more of what a blind man saw.

The revolution in Yucatan is assuming large proportions. Santa Anna has been proclaimed dictator by the revolutionists and is being expected to arrive from Havana with men and a million dollars. The port and town of Sanal was in the hands of the revolutionists but was blockaded by two Mexican gunboats.

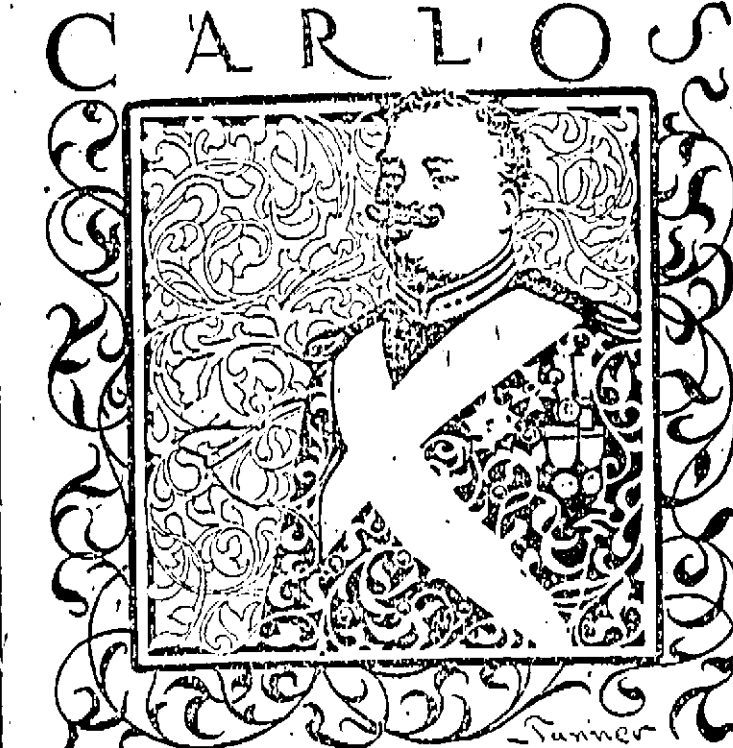

From a trustworthy source it is learned that the House of Representatives, previous to their adjournment, was positively informed to the satisfaction of the purchase of the islands of St. Thomas and St. John, owing to the recent earthquake there.

An estimate compiled from the statistics collected by the governors of the southern states places the number of whites and blacks in Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and the Carolinas who are in a starving condition, at three millions.

EMPIRE GOWN OF GRAY LANSDOWNE

The graceful moulding of this empire costume displays to advantage the beauty of the material, a soft, lustrous, clinging lansdowne in a delicate shade of mauve. The long skirt, plainly indicative of Pugin's master art, is simply trimmed at the top of the deep hem with hand embroidered in the dress tone. The short-waisted bodice has an embroidered leave drapery over appliqued net and a plastron front and back, edged with silk fringe, heavily embroidered, suggestive of church robes. A harmonizing touch of color reveals itself in the pale blue ribbon cuff trimmings and the tie arrangement at the neck.

December 28, 1893—Eighteen years ago today Carlos I. was proclaimed King of Portugal.

A Cheerful Disposition.
It is well to be cheerful of disposition, to wear a bright face, to speak in a happy tone, to be lively in action. It is a tonic to others as well as a benefit to one's self. It is as infectious as a disease, encouraging good spirits in those about one, as well as stimulating healthy views of life in one's own mind.

An Unmentioned Ancestor.
Mr. B. is very proud of his ancient lineage and never lets slip an opportunity to boast of it. At a dinner where he had been unusually rampant on this subject, a fellow guest quieted him by remarking: "If you climb much further up your family tree you will come face to face with the monkey."—Lippincott's.

Wise Provision of Nature.
The skin of the men and women of some nations is much thicker than that of others, particularly in hot countries. The Central African negro has a skin about half as thick again as that of a European. That of a negro is thicker over the head and back—evidently to form protection from the sun.

When Mating Fades.
A thrifty young housekeeper who was much distressed to find her matting had faded, treated it with an oak stain of floor varnish and was delighted with the results.

PLAN OF MRS. EDDY CHARITABLE FUND

MILLION DOLLARS FOR FOUNDING OF INSTITUTION.

TO TEACH THE INDIGENT

Beneficiaries, with Their Families, Will Be Supported While Learning Science of Christian Healing.

Boston, Dec. 28.—Details of the plan of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, head of the Christian Science church, in relation to the charitable institution which she is to found, are contained in an editorial by Archibald McCallan in the current issue of the Christian Science Sentinel. The editorial says in part:

"Mrs. Eddy has consented that the institution which she purposes to found will bear her name, therefore it will be known as 'Mary Baker G. Eddy's charitable fund.' The board of directors will be located in Boston, the recognized headquarters of her church, and in plan and scope this fund will be an educational opportunity by which indigent persons will be taught gratuitously the science of the Christ healing as practiced by Jesus and as made known through the writings of Mrs. Eddy.

Million Dollars to Be Given.
"The sum of $1,000,000 will be devoted to this sole purpose. Mrs. Eddy's benevolence will be open to all those individuals who are genuinely interested in Christian science for its truth's sake and who shall present to the board of directors of the fund satisfactory certification of their intelligence, their religious views and their moral character. The students of Christian Science will be maintained by this fund until such time as the board of directors shall have pronounced them good healers of the sick, and deliver to them certificates to this effect.

To Support Beneficiaries.
"The beneficiaries of this fund, and the families of those who have families, are to be supported from the income of the fund and the number of students and their families to be supported will depend upon the amount of this income.

"Mrs. Eddy has turned this matter over to a prospective board of directors for them to work out the details of the charity. In the meantime no further information upon this subject can be given out and no letters of inquiry should be addressed to Mrs. Eddy."

Teller Accused of Embezzlement.
Philadelphia, Dec. 28.—James Simpson, paying teller of the Farmers' National bank, was arrested Friday night on a warrant charging him with the embezzlement of $4,000. Simpson entered the employ of the bank when but 14 years of age, and during 25 years, by gradual steps, had been elevated to the position of paying teller.

Head of Carlisle School Resigns.
Carlisle, Pa., Dec. 28.—Mr. William A. Mercer, who for six years has been superintendent of the Carlisle Indian Industrial school, has resigned. His resignation is to take effect upon the appointment of his successor.

Explosion Kills Young Student.
Greenville, O., Dec. 28.—Mason Burnett, aged 15, son of Dr. and Mrs. George W. Burnett, was killed Friday afternoon by an explosion while engaged in chemical research at the high school laboratories.

Angry Adjectives.
It was not a young woman novelist, but Charles Sumner, of whom the late E. J. Godkin, the New York editor, said: "He works his adjectives so hard that if they ever catch him alone they will murder him."—Youth's Companion.

PISO'S Consuming Consumption

even in its most intractable form is not always incurable. The first intelligent step in the treatment of the disease is to stop the violent paroxysms of coughing which tear the lungs and enfeeble the system. Piso's Cure has permanently cured many consumptive coughs, as shown by court testimony because of its antiseptic, healing and soothing qualities act directly on the lungs and bronchial passages, stopping the coughing and gently healing the irritated tissues. Even the most advanced consumptive coughs have responded quickly to Piso's Cure, which being absolutely free from opiates or habit-forming drugs is the ideal remedy for every form of coughs, colds, bronchitis in young and old. For nearly half a century Piso's Cure has been demonstrating that the most advanced form of chest affections

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT

While inventories are being taken, and balance sheets made out, it is a good time to take individual account of stock, and discover whether or not the year just closing has been profitable.

Someone has said that there is no standing still in life, and that retardation or larger development is the record of every day's experience.

The age of maturity is placed at 18 and 21, but the girl who imagines that she is a full-fledged woman at 18, is as much mistaken as the boy who thinks himself a fully developed man at 21.

The formative years have strengthened muscles and hardened bone and tissue. They have also equipped the storehouses of brain and mind with various kinds of knowledge, and it properly equipped the heart has not been neglected, but the great drama of life itself is all in the future.

During these earlier years the annual inventory should always record progress, and unless it does the serious work of life will possess but little significance when the age of maturity is reached. With an average equipment, the young men and women of 25 should be interested in taking account of stock, at the close of the year. They have been in the whirl of busy life long enough to discover some of their weaknesses, and to test, in some degree, whether they possess in the way of strength.

Habits of thought and of living, have been formed, some of the rough corners knocked off, and the discovery made that life is a school, possessing a storehouse of knowledge which time and experience alone may acquire.

With the girl, at this age, it is an open question whether she will be lured by some good man to make his home and share his fortunes, or whether she will be obliged to trudge along alone in her chosen vocation.

The evolution, which is constantly going on in the industrial and commercial world, has opened up so many new avenues for girls, that the problem of independence is solved without the aid of domestic life, and the outlook for the girl of 25 is no longer foreboding.

President Salisbury of the White-water Normal, said, a few days ago, in discussing teaching as an occupation, that while salaries are low, for ordinary teachers, that there was never a time when it was more difficult to supply the demand for good teachers than today.

In speaking of long continued service he said, "Out of the first class of six girls, graduated from the Normal, 37 years ago, three have a record of continuous service, and are still in the ranks."

This is an encouraging object-lesson to the younger generation of teachers who are planning for life work in this particular field, and this is not the only channel where intelligent and faithful service is rewarded.

There are many other positions where girls grow old through filling important positions, and many industries where expert skill is rewarded by contracts renewed year after year. Even in the much despised domestic service there is a world of independence and liberal compensation. A girl called at a third ward home, the other day, and applied for work.

She was without reference, but from her mother. Were there any children in the family, and would she be obliged to look after them? Did the family entertain much company and would she be asked to wait on the table? How many evenings could she have out and might she practice on the piano?

After satisfying herself that the place was a good deal of a paradise, she decided that if the washing could be put out who might decide to cast in her fortune with the family at $7 per week. That's better than a dowry and a license to marry a clerk on a $10 salary.

All things considered the girl's inventory and outlook ought to be very satisfactory this year. With the alluring lottery of wedlock always looming up in the distance life should never be monotonous.

With the boy of 25 the proposition presented is entirely different. What- ever his mental equipment the fact has gradually dawned upon him that his knowledge is limited, and he finds in the great university of life many perplexing problems which only time and experience can solve.

When he left school he had hopes and aspirations to master a business or profession in a year, and he set out for himself, with his own shingle swinging over the door, but a love affair tangled him up early in his career, and now a wife and babies tug at his heart and purse-strings. The heart stunts the strain better than the pocketbook, and so his hopes for independence have gone glimmering.

But the inventory shows a balance on the right side of the ledger, for he is richer in experience and mental equipment, and with eyes to the front he scans the future with hopeful vision and says, "In five years more I will stand at the front with hopes fully realized."

That's a sensible view of the situation for any young man at 25, whether handicapped by family ties or not. It requires 10 years of the rough and tumble of life to equip the average young man for independent service.

This does not mean that life should be purposeless, for every young man owes it to himself to find his calling early in his career, and then work to it with steady and determined purpose.

The evolution which has affected girls' work so much has also entered the boys' domain, and the concentration of forces and capital has closed many old avenues which were open 25 years ago.

The average boy no longer follows his father's trade or profession, because, in many cases the family hearth has been lost in the shuffle, but in its place has come the demand for expert skill and knowledge in many new channels of work.

There was never a time in history when, without capital, a young man could get so near the front as today. Every channel of work invites him, and the rewards are larger and more certain than come to many men who are struggling with business problems, uncertain of what the future has in store.

Let the inventories be taken, for they are always profitable. Top of the habits that interfere with physical strength and development. Stimulate the mind with wholesome and helpful thinking. Keep the heart pure and clean and with face to the front enter the race at the opening of the new year, and on the tablet of 1908 will be recorded success in every faithful toiler.

The January American Magazine

"Mr. Dooley," who is now writing exclusively for The American Magazine, describes congress in the January number. The cartoons are by McCutcheon of Chicago.

In the same number of The American, scenes and incidents illustrating the extravagant and fantastic life of the super-rich are reproduced from "The Metropolis," an unpublished story of New York society by Upton Sinclair, author of "The Jungle." This new story by Mr. Sinclair, which is bound to create a sensation, will run for several months.

David Grayson, author of "Adventures in Containment," begins a new series called "The Open Road." Stewart Edward White writes of "The Fight for the Furrows." Ida M. Warren tells the story of "Roosevelt vs. Rockefeller." Walter Bruchman tells of "The Rise of David Wardell."

The "Migra's" Scrip contains "A Muckraker's Christmas Carol." The Interpreter discusses Upton Sinclair's new and sensational novel which is now running in The American. Other contributors of stories are Annie Hamilton, Lyla Schuyler, Mrs. McKee Rankin, W. R. Hopkins, Charles Dutton Goring, Edith Bernard, Kate Jordan, and Julian Street.

Let Us All Read

Editorial in the January Century.

It is said that in hard times people buy books for presents, instead of more expensive gifts. The writers and editors and publishers are interested in this tendency. They think that there may be a good deal in it. They hope that people, in especial, in economic periods, may not only turn more than ever to the buying of books and magazines for presents, but for reading! It would not be a bad outcome of hard times if people should learn to spend more of their time in good reading, rather than in the highly expensive amusements and distractions. The habit of reading is not only profitable to those who write, print, and publish, but, if rightly guided, vastly profitable to those who do the reading.

IS YOUR HORSE SHARP SHOD?

Think This Over

There are lots of people in the city who are wearing crowns in their mouths for which they have paid an even ten dollars each.

"That's all right if one couldn't do better, but when you stop to think that for exactly half that amount you may now get exactly the same work by choosing Dr. Richards for your Dentist.

It becomes a matter of simple justice to your own purse to think twice before you repeat the offense.

There are dentists in Chicago who charge $35.00 an hour for their time. And there are others—just as good operators—that do not get half that fee.

It's all in the nerve of the Dentist how much he makes you pay him for his services.

Dr. Richards has built his present large practice upon the theory that "The best work coupled with Reasonable prices will win out in the end."

Dr. Richards says:

"If you can show me a single point of superiority of these $10 crowns over my $5 crowns.

I would be glad to know it.

I am willing to be convinced.

I will declare to you.

I have compared them day after day as I see them in my patients' mouths.

And I know what I am talking about.

It makes no difference whether you pay $10 or $5.

You get the same crown.

MRS. M'KAY REACHES CITY.

Mother of Dead Woman Here—Is Very Hysterical—Coroner's Jury Probing Death with Much Thoroughness.

Whether Madelon Odell Clayton, the unfortunate woman whose body was found in the Rock river yesterday noon, had been murdered or was murdered is a question that is to be left to the coroner's jury to decide.

Mysterious circumstances which surround her death were such that District Attorney Fisher deemed it advisable to summon a jury to probe the affair.

This noon, after nearly twenty-four hours of waiting, City Marshal Appleby, received a telephone message from Frederick Clayton, the dead woman's husband, from Chicago. Mr. Clayton stated that he had been in Indiana business, had slept late and knew nothing of the discovery of his wife's body until he read the morning paper.

In his conversation he said the morning papers intimated his wife might have been murdered and asked Mr. Appleby's opinion. The chief replied that the investigations were not finished yet and he had no definite opinion.

Clayton then stated he would leave Chicago on the first train possible, which would be the four o'clock North-Western train reaching here at six-thirty, and asked that Mr. McKay wait his arrival in this city.

In view of his possible arrival the coroner's jury adjourned this afternoon at one o'clock until Monday at nine when testimony will be taken.

Mrs. McKay, the mother of the dead woman, reached the city this morning at ten-thirty, accompanied by Mrs. Hayes, a friend. She was very hysterical and with difficulty could restrain herself. What she told the district attorney and city marshal failed to throw any new light on the situation.

Many circumstances surrounding the disappearance of Mrs. Clayton still remain to be solved. The position of her body when found, the excellent preservation of the remains, showing that no decomposition had set in, and that the body had not floated to its location when discovered. The fact the lungs showed no presence of water or as though death had occurred through drowning, that they floated easily in water, does a healthy lung of a person dying from a natural cause. The condition of the clothes all being in place except the hat which has not yet been located. Owing to the knowledge of the marks on the throat, neck and face all traces of a possibility of death by strangulation have disappeared and the story which might have been told by a congested condition of the brain is lost from the same cause. A careful examination of the scalp showed no wounds or bruises and none of the limbs, ribs or any portion of the body were broken or discolored.

Caught in Wire

The location of the corpse was one which would not occur under ordinary circumstances. It is certain that the body did not float to the position found and there are only two theories left: that the woman was dead before placed in the water and was carried there the position. The last seems improbable, and the first difficult to believe. Traces of mud on the body were found on the body, showing that these muds—not carp—had been scraped with a knife. When found the body was lying with the head exposed, the remainder of the corpse being under water. A plush coat covered a fancy waist and a skirt of tawny brown material, with gutters of gray to match garters of the same color, and a pair of expensive shoes completed the outfit. On the fingers were the two rings, the plain gold band of the wedding ring and an opal. A plain gold watch on a black cord chain completed the jewelry. The body was entangled in wire when found.

Call a Jury

These and other suspicious circumstances caused District Attorney Fisher this morning to have a coroner's jury empanelled. This was composed of R. M. Brewster, Jr., C. S. Cloward, D. W. Watt, Charles Curtis, Joseph Bear and D. W. Hayes, Justice of the Peace Stanley Tallman will act as coroner. Accompanied by District Attorney Fisher, Sheriff Fisher and Chief of Police Appleby, the jury this morning visited the scene of the finding of the body. They also looked at the remains at Nelson's morgue and then adjourned until one-thirty when testimony was taken relative to the disappearance and other matters pertaining to circumstances that make the death mysterious.

Formerly an Actress

Mrs. Clayton was formerly an actress. According to a Chicago paper this morning, she was married to Clayton at St. Joseph, Michigan, in February last. Chicago dispatches state that Mrs. McKay, the girl's mother, is separated from her husband and that he lives in California. They also state that Mrs. McKay had never met her son-in-law until he came to Chicago after his wife's disappearance. The Chicago Interior Ocean prints the following facts relative to the case that may perhaps give a motive for her death by violence and certainly would give no reason for suicide. The article referred to is as follows:

"A week after the disappearance of Mrs. Clayton the following advertisement was inserted in Chicago newspapers:

"Personal—Madelon Odell Clayton is dying. Come, 4438 Champlain avenue, Grace."

"Madelon Odell is the stage name formerly used by Mrs. Clayton when she was a chorus girl. The advertisement was put in the papers by Mrs. George McElowney, who lives at the number mentioned in the personal. Mrs. McElowney is a sister of the dead woman, and when questioned and in regard to the advertisement said her sister had inherited a sum of money, and the purpose of putting the advertisement in the papers was to find her, so that there could be an immediate adjustment of the estate involved.

Sister Admits, Russ

"After purpose in using the phrase, 'Mother is dying,' she said, was to make certain that her sister would write at once, if it was brought to her notice. She laughed at the idea that her mother was dying, and claimed that she was well and happy, and that no one doubted that 'Madelon' would be heard from within a few days.

"Notwithstanding these assertions, Mrs. McKay was so worried over the disappearance of her daughter from the house where she had been staying in Janesville that she was ill in bed. 'Madelon' is needed just now to sign some papers in the matter of the estate of a dead uncle, who left $5,000, of which Madelon will have one-fourth part if she will come to Chicago," Mrs. McElowney said in an interview.

"The reason I had to put the advertisement in the paper is that Madelon is a chorus girl, 24 years old, and is somewhere in the United States dancing to one night stands. But we don't know where. The last time we heard from her she was with Murray and Mack, eleven months ago."

RIVERSIDE DRIVE MOST EXPENSIVE IN THE WORLD

NEW YORK.—When the extension to Riverside drive that are now under construction are completed, it is asserted that New York will have the finest and most costly roadway ever built. From south of the point where Harlem begins to the northwestern edge of the Bronx will be a succession of massive retaining walls, bridges and viaducts constructed of Mahoe granite. Apartment houses commanding the splendid view of the Hudson and the Palisades, which are being built as rapidly as the drive itself is being extended, will line the thoroughfare for its entire length, while here and there it will be adorned by fountains and monuments. The grassy slopes above and below the drive will be decorated

FREE LIVING IS EASY IN GOTHAM TO MAN OF NERVE

IN SPITE of the fact that New York is the most expensive city in the country, recent investigation has proved conclusively that it is possible for a man, provided he is of good appearance and possessed of some nerve, to live nicely here on nothing a day. This does not mean begging, but obtaining the necessities of life, together with luxuries, too, without the use of a penny.

FAMOUS BAXTER STREET GRADUALLY DISAPPEARING

MANY of New York's memorable spots are gradually disappearing. Old Baxter street, running from Park Row to Mulberry park, which was the home of the "puller-in" and the stamping ground of the 60-odd "original Cohens," is as quiet as a country lane these days. Many of the stores wear to let signs, and a passerby is in no danger of having his arm torn off by the persistent old clothes merchant. But if you want to see the famous old street reproduced take a walk along Seventh

GRAND TRUNK WRECK FATAL TO FIVE MEN

PASSENGER TRAIN AND FREIGHT
COLLIDE IN DENSE FOG.

VICTIMS ARE TRAINMEN

Their Bodies Terribly Mangled and Scalded—Three Persons
Killed in Collision at Camden, N. J.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 28.—Speeding through a dense fog at 40 miles an hour, "Grand Trunk" passenger train No. 5, which left Port Huron shortly before seven o'clock Friday night for this city, collided head on with a double-headed freight train, half a mile north of Lenox, Mich.

Five trainmen met death, four being killed instantly, the fifth dying three hours later. All of the passengers escaped injury except a baby, who was slightly hurt by being thrown out of its mother's arms and over a seat, when the train crashed.

The dead are: James Bennett, passenger engineer, Detroit; August H. Howald, freight engineer, Detroit; George Houghner, freight trainman, Detroit; Wilbur G. Tyler, freight switchman, Detroit; and Albert McCull, passenger fireman, Port Huron, Mich.

The passenger locomotive plowed under the engines of the double-headed and the trainmen were buried in the wreckage. Their bodies were terribly mangled and scalded by the escaping steam.

Engineer Fred Haug and Fireman Washburn of the second freight engine escaped death. Haug was caught in his cab but was taken out unhurt. Washburn jumped and was only slightly injured.

The freight train had switched from the main track to a siding to allow the passenger to pass. It is unofficially charged that the switch was not properly closed and, on account of the heavy fog which prevailed, the passenger crew could not see that the target was laid against them.

MANY KILLED IN MINES.

Over Two Thousand Men Gave Up
Their Lives in 1906.

Philadelphia.—The total number of men killed while mining coal in the United States during 1906, according to statistics gathered by the geological survey, was 2,061. The number of workmen receiving injuries in this industry more or less serious, but not fatal, was 4,798 during the same period.

The death rate per thousand of workmen was 3.4 or, in other words, of every 1,000 coal miners over three were killed and more than six seriously injured in accidents at the coal mines. This is a heavy toll when it is considered that England's death rate per 1,000 coal miners during last year was only one. Every 190,353 tons of coal mined in this country last year cost one life.

The principal causes of death were falls of roof and coal, and explosions. The deaths due to the former numbered 1,008; gas and dust explosions, 228; powder explosions, 80; miscellaneous, 75.

The number of men killed in Pennsylvania mines during 1906 was: Anthracite, 557; bituminous, 447; total, 1,004, or more than half of the number killed in the 20 states and territories in which coal was mined. But Pennsylvania produced more coal than all the other states and the territories combined.

During the same period the number of persons injured in accidents in Pennsylvania mines was: Anthracite, 1,212; bituminous, 1,160; total, 2,372. Of those killed in Pennsylvania mines, 583 left widows and 1,294 children were made fatherless. Pennsylvania's death rate per 1,000 miners was Anthracite, 3.43; bituminous, 3.14.

The state which made the lowest record in the death rate per 1,000 for 1906 was Maryland, with 1.09. Colorado had the highest death rate, 7.74 per 1,000; West Virginia, second, with 5.65.

UTE INDIANS ON RAIDS.

Bands from Colorado Cause Trouble in Southern Utah.

Salt Lake City, Dec. 28.—Colorado Ute Indians are traveling in bands in southern Utah, raiding sheep and cattle, according to a report received Friday by Gov. John C. Cutter. A small band of Indians attacked three cowboys near Vordere, San Juan county, on December 23, and compelled them to drive their cattle back into the canyon from which they were trailing on to the winter range, threatening to kill them unless they did so. Cowboys and cattle are still confined to the canyon.

Gov. Cutter will take up the matter with the authorities at Washington, as, according to a ruling of the commissioner of Indian affairs, the Colorado or southern Utes are forbidden to enter Utah.

Influence of Nature.
I will walk abroad; old griefs shall be forgotten today; for the air is cool and still, and the hills are high and stretch away to heaven; and the forest glades are quiet as a churchyard; and with the dew, I can wash the fever from my forehead and then I shall be unhappy no longer.—Du Quincey.

A New Back for an Old One—How it Is Done in Janesville.

The back aches at times with a dull, indescribable feeling, making you weary and restless; pinching pains shoot across the region of the kidneys, and again the joints are so lame to stoop in agony. No use to rub or apply a plaster to the back in this condition. You cannot reach the cause. Exchange the old back for a new and stronger one. Follow the example of this Janesville citizen.

John Lawler, of 259 South River street, Janesville, Wis., says: "During the several years I suffered from kidney trouble I used about every remedy that was ever recommended, and it is a positive fact that none of these preparations did me as much good as a few boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills which I procured recently at the People's Drug Co. I might say they have given me a new back. I will never forget the great relief I found through the use of Doan's Kidney Pills and I keep them always on hand, and whenever I feel that weakness in the back I appeal and they soon drive the trouble away."

WE HAVE A

Leucodescent Violet Ray Electric Light

AT OUR SANITARIUM

From the New York and Chicago Tribunes

In an effort to effect rapid cures of certain diseases the surgeons at the New York Skin and Cancer hospital, at Nineteenth street and Second avenue, are experimenting with the leucodescent light, discovered by Dr. William Seaman Bainbridge, the eminent specialist who is a visiting surgeon at this hospital. The leucodescent light used has 500 candle power and is made intensely strong by parabolic reflectors.

Surgeons who have experimented with the light are wonderfully impressed with its power. They say it relieves pains of almost any kind. In the treatment of acute indigestion surgeons say it has accomplished great results, benefiting the patient in a few minutes after it has been used.

The surgeons are puzzled, however, in determining whether the curative powers are in the rays of the light or in the heat emitted from the bulb. The light focussed on the seat of the pain producing a congestion of the skin which immediately increases the blood supply. "The combination of the light and heat," said one of the physicians, "is evidently the cause of the mysterious healing."

CHAPTER TWO

A HOUSE of native stone built into and among weathered rocks, one massive wing butting seaward, others nosing north and south among cedars and outcropping ledges, the whole silver gray mass of masonry reddening under a weathering sun, every dormer, every leeward diamond pane adorned—this was Shotover as Seward first beheld it.

As the phanton drew up under a pillared porch cohered one or two servants appeared. A rather imposing specimen bowed them through the door into the hall, where in a wide chimney place the embers of a drift wood fire glimmered like a heap of dusty jewels.

She turned, nodded her adieu, then, over her shoulder casually, "If you haven't an appointment with the maidman before dinner you may find me in the parlor."

"I'll be there in about three minutes," he said. "And what about this dog?" looking down at the Sagamore pup, who stood before him wagging, attentive, always the gentleman to the tip of his toes.

Miss Landis laughed. "Take him to your room if you like. Dogs have the run of the house."

So he followed a servant to the floor above, where a smiling and very ornamental maid preceded him through a corridor and into that heavy wing of the house which fronted the sea.

"Ten is used in the parlor, sir," said the pretty maid and disappeared to give place to a melancholy and silent young man, who turned on the bath, laid out fresh garments, and, whispering "Scotch or Irish, sir?" presently offered himself.

Before he quipped his own throat Seward filled a bowl and set it on the floor, and it seemed as though the dog would never finish gulping and slapping in the liquid ley water.

"It's the salt air, my boy," commented the young man, gravely refilling his own glass as though accepting the excuse on his own account.

Then man and beast completed ablutions and grooming and filed out through the wide corridor, around the gallery and down the broad stairway to the parlor, an open vaulted place illuminated by the sun, where mellow lights sparkled on glass cases rowing fowling pieces and rifles, on the polished surfaces of shaggy moose heads.

Miss Landis sat curled up in a cushioned corner under the open easement pane offering herself a cup of tea. She looked up, nodding invitation. He found a place beside her. A servant whispered, "Scotch or Irish, sir?" then set the crystal paraphernalia at his elbow.

"No salt something about the salt air, casually. The girl gazed meditatively at space.

The sound of wheels on the gravel outside aroused her from a silence which had become a brown study, and to Seward presently she said, "Here amidst our first rendezvous."

"Then let us arrange another immediately," he said, stirring the ice in his glass.

The girl considered him with speculative eyes. "I shouldn't exactly know what to do with you for the next hour if I didn't abandon you."

"Why bother to do anything with me? Why even give yourself the trouble of deserting me? That solves the problem."

"I really don't mean that you are a problem to me, Mr. Seward," she said, amused. "I mean that I am going to drive again."

"I see."

"No; you don't see at all. There's a telegram I'm not driving for pleasure."

She had not meant that either, and it annoyed her that she had expressed herself in such terms. As a matter of fact, at the telegraphed request of Mr. Quarrier she was going to Black Fells Crossing to meet his train from the lakes and drive him back to Shotover.

This drive, therefore, was, of course, a drive for pleasure.

"I see," repeated Seward amiably. "Perhaps you do," she observed, rising to her graceful height. He was on his feet at once, so carefully, so good humoredly acquiescent that without any reason at all she hesitated.

"I had meant to show you about—the cliffs, the kennels and stables, I'm sorry," she concluded, lingering. "I'm awfully sorry," he rejoined without meaning anything in particular. That was the trouble—whatever he said apparently meant so much.

With the agreeable sensation of being escorted she leisurely gloved herself, then walked through the parlor and hall, Seward strolling beside her.

The dog followed them as they turned toward the door, and passed out across the terrace veranda to the driveway, where a tandem cart was drawn up, faultlessly appointed. Quarrier's man was tandem. She thought it rather nice of her to remember this.

She inspected the ensemble without visible interest for a few moments. The wind freshened from the sea, rustling her veil, and she turned toward the cart-to face it. In the golden splendor of declining day the white sails of yachts crowded landward on the last log before boating westward into Blue harbor. A small white cruiser stemming south left a mile long stratum of rose tinted smoke hanging parallel to the horizon's plane. The westerling sun struck sparks from her bright wheel.

They had turned their backs to the tandem. The groom looked after them, standing motionless at the horse's head.

"Mr. Seward, this is too fine to miss," she said. "I will walk as far as the headland with you. Please smoke if you care to."

The breeze blown conversation became fragmentary, veering as capriciously as the purple wind flares that spread across the shoals. But always to her question or comment she found in his response the charm of freshness, of quick intelligence or of a humorous and idle perversity which stimulates without demanding.

Once, glancing back at the house where the cart and horses stood, she said that she had better return, or perhaps she only thought she said it, for he made no response that time, and a few moments later they reached the headland, and the Atlantic lay below, flowing azure from horizon to horizon under a universe of deep blue.

And for a long while neither spoke.

With her the spell endured until consciousness began to stir. Then she spoke, money, as always, under the shadow of restraint or pressure until her eyes fell on him and lingered.

A subtle change had come into his face. Its leanness struck her, for the first time—that and an utter doubt from his surroundings, a somber oblivion to everything and to her.

How curiously had his face altered! How shadowy! It had grown, effacing the charm of youth in it!

The slight amusement with which she had become conscious of her own personal exclusion grew to an interest tinged with curiosity.

The interest continued, but when his silence became irksome to her she said so very frankly. His absent eyes, still clouded, met hers unsmilingly.

"I was thinking of men I knew—for example, a man who through generations has inherited every impulse and desire that he should not harbor; a man with intellect enough to be aware of it, with decency enough to desire decency. What chance has he with the storm which have been brewing for him even before he opened his eyes on earth? Is that a question?"

The troubled concentration of her face was reflected now in his own. The wind came whistling and flicking at them from long ago wide tossing wastes! The steady thunder of the sea accented the silence.

Turning to the sea, he had become engrossed in his own thoughts again, and again she was fleet curious, then impatient, at the ease with which he excluded her. She remembered, too, that the cart was waiting; that she had scarcely time now to make the train.

She stood irresolute, inert, disinclined to stir herself. An inborn aptitude for drifting, which threatened to become a talent for indecision, had always alternated in her with sudden impulsive conclusions and when her pride was involved in decisions which sometimes scarcely withstood the analysis of reason.

Physically healthy, mentally unwarmed, sentimentally incredulous, totally ignorant of any master passion and conventionally drilled, her beauty and sweet temper had carried her easily on the frothy crest of her first passion over the eligible and intelligible alikes, leaving her at Lenox a rather tired and breathless girl in love with pleasure and the world which treated her so well.

The death of her mother abroad had made little impression upon her, her uncle, Major Holmwood, having cared for her when her father's death, when she was ten years old. So, although the scandal of her mother's self exile had been in a measure condoned by a tardy marriage to the man for whom she had left everything, her daughter had grown up ignorant of any particular feeling for a mother she could scarcely remember.

However, she wore black and went nowhere for the second winter, during which time she learned a great deal concerning the unconventional proclivities of the woman of her race and family, enough to impress her so seriously that on an exaggerated impulse she had come to one of her characteristic decisions.

That decision was to break the unsavory record at the first justifiable opportunity, and the opportunity came in the shape of Quarrier—as though wedlock were actually the sanctuary which an alarmed nation pretends it to be!

Now, approaching the threshold of a third and last season and having put away her almost meaningless mourning, there had stolen into her sense of security something irksome in the promise she had made to give Quarrier a definite answer before winter.

Perhaps it had been the lack of interest in the people at Shotover, perhaps a mental review of her ancestors' capricious records, perhaps a characteristic impulse that had directed a telegram to Quarrier after a midnight confab with Grace Ferrall.

However it may have been, she had summoned him. And now he was on his way to get his answer, the best whip, the most eagerly discussed and one of the wealthiest unmarried men in America.

Lingered, irresolutely, considering with idle eyes the shadows lengthening across the sun shot moorland, the sound of Seward's own voice aroused her from a meditation bordering on lassitude.

She answered vaguely. He spoke again, all the agreeable, gentle, humorous charm dominant once more, reminding her from the growing tension of her own thoughts, absolving her from the duty of immediate decision.

"I feel curiously lazy," she said, "perhaps from our long drive." She seated herself on the turf.

"Talk to me, Mr. Seward," he said. "Talk to me, Mr. Seward, in that lazy way of yours."

What he had to say proved inconsequent enough, an irrelevant suggestion concerning the training of field dogs. The conversation veered again toward the mystery of her laziness.

"Do you mean, Mr. Seward, that heredity is an excuse for moral weakness?" she asked.

"I don't know. Those inheriting nothing of evil say it is no excuse."

"It is no excuse."

"You speak with authority," he said. "With more than you are aware of," she murmured, not meaning to say it.

She stood up impulsively, her face turned to the distant house, her rounded, young figure poised in relief against the sky.

"Inherited or not, illnesses, procreancy, are my besetting sins. Can't you suggest the remedy, Mr. Seward?"

"That they are only the thieves of Time, and we kill the poor old gentleman."

"Langued assassins," she repeated pensively.

Her gown had caught on the cliff briars. He knelt to release it, she looking down, noting an ugly tear in the fabric.

"Payment for my iniquities—the first installment," she said, still looking down over his shoulder and watching his efforts to release her. "Thank you, Mr. Seward. I think we ought to start, don't you?"

No straightened up, smiling, awaiting her further pleasure. Her pleasure being capricious, she seated herself again, saying: "What I meant to say was this: Evils that spring from heredity are no excuse for misconduct in people of our sort. Environment, not heredity, counts. And it's our business, who have every chance in the world, to make good."

He looked down, amused at the poignant incongruity of voice and verbiage.

URGED TO GO TO BROOKLYN

NEW YORK "RENT STRIKERS" ARE BESIEGED BY AGENTS.

Many Tenement House Meetings to Plan Resistance to Eviction by Landlords.

New York, Dec. 28.—Real estate agents from Brooklyn went into the crowded tenement house districts on the East side of Manhattan Friday and tried to do missionary work in their own interests by urging the tenants, who are now engaged in a crusade for lower rents, to move to Brooklyn.

But activity of outsiders did not seem to disturb the local real estate owners and agents. One of them said that the East side is a clanish creature and likes to associate with the friends and neighbors whom he has known since his arrival from Europe.

"A majority of them come right here from the steamers that bring them over, or from the immigrant station," he said. "They stay here, too, until such time as they have earned their little piles and can move elsewhere."

At the Socialist party headquarters on Grand street it was learned that the evictions which have been made since the rent strike was decided upon have no "real complaint" with the movement. Such evictions are for failure to pay rent for the present and past months. The crucial point will come, it is at all, when the collectors make their January calls.

There were tenement house meetings on almost every block Friday night. For the most part these were impromptu gatherings, without any attempt at organization, but each was marked by many declarations of war against the landlords. Many of the tenants were of the opinion that their end could best be accomplished by resisting attempts at collection of present rents and affording shelter to persons evicted. There were others who favored more drastic measures and many tenants discussed a combined stand against the marshals in the event of evictions.

Pauline Newman, who is reputed to be the woman leader of the strike movement, is in favor of moderation. She has told the women associated with her that they can hope to win by united action if they are careful to keep within the law, and that the landlords, if a united front is presented to them, will be bound to yield rather than fight thousands of dispossession cases in the municipal courts.

New York Full of Mendicants.

New York, Dec. 28.—Hordes of migratory mendicants and a hundred of unemployed workmen from other cities are pouring into New York and the influx of dependents on the municipality has developed a situation which the charitable institutions are unable to meet. Hundreds of applicants for clothing, food and lodging are being turned away daily by philanthropic institutions and to consider these extraordinary conditions an informal meeting was held Friday by representatives of 20 charitable organizations.

NUNNALLY, WORLD BEATER.

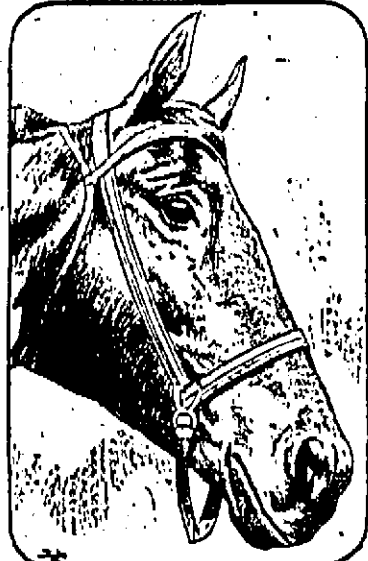

How the Pacific Coast Thoroughbred Lowered Five Furlong Record.

The bay running horse Jack Nunnally is the best sprinter in training on the Pacific coast. He recently achieved national fame by placing the world's record for five furlongs at 58-3-5 seconds.

It was in the Petaluma handicap at Oakland, Cal., that he recently made the record.

Jack Nunnally is a three-year-old. He beat the crack two-year-old Moelek, owned by the Hildreth stable, in the race in question.

Jack Nunnally, last at the half, came with a sensational burst of speed when straightened away in the stretch. Then followed a battle royal for a furlong, but Jack Nunnally drew away at the finish and scored a sensational victory. Moelek ran a wonderful race for a two-year-old, but he was unable to concede one year in age besides three pounds in actual weight.

Jack Nunnally has been a thorn in the side of the crack Hildreth stable.

On the opening day of the meeting at Oakland Jack Nunnally nosed out Montgomery in the opening handicap, while later the horse from the Sierra Nevada stable beat Moelek. Jack Nunnally was 7 to 1 in the betting when he broke the record, although his stable connections were confident of winning. A few minutes before the race Trainer Hickey remarked to a couple of newspaper men whom he happened to pass, "The horse that beats Jack Nunnally will have to beat the world's record."

The race proved that Hickey knew what his horse was capable of accomplishing.

Then, too, the world loves the fellow that whistles on the way—just as we love the wind that sings o'er the laughing leaves more than the hurricane that howls across the road!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Possible Controversy Here.

Why, asks the London Gentlewoman, are men better looking than women? It is a problem which must perplex and puzzle modern women, for, taking them in the aggregate, men nowadays leave women behind in point of personal beauty.

Cloaks Have the Stage Today

We cannot make a long story out of the cloak subject, for the simple reason that we are not extra long on cloaks. However, the cloaks that we do show are good ones and we have a very fair assortment of colors and sizes. In the "Bostwick" garments quality and workmanship appeal to the most critical buyers. Every cloak that we offer is this season's style, which we show in tight-fitting, semi-fitting and loose garments. Of course, at this time prices must be attractive to induce people to buy. A woman does not have to be a judge of values to see that the prices we are making for the very best garments are unusually low. Whether it is a cloak for a woman, miss or child that one wants, it will pay to call and see THE BIG STORE'S showing before letting go of your good money.

Ready-to-Wear Suits

Our stock is gradually growing less under the hammer at cut prices, but the assortment we show still comprises some beautiful black broadcloth suits, as well as plain colors and fancy mixtures. It is surely a good time to buy a good suit for little money. It is simply a question of not having had a few weeks' extra wear if one buys now. There is plenty of time left to wear a suit. We are not as rushed in the alteration department as we were and can make any changes while you wait almost.

While our stock is in as good condition as it is today it is an opportunity to buy a cloak or suit at a saving of $5.00 to $12.00 over former prices. Our time is yours when you get ready to look at our stock. We cannot emphasize too strongly not to put off coming in if interested.

We have not dwelt on prices, you will notice, but anyway people can judge more about the bargains they are getting when they call and learn our prices than by columns of figures.

NEWS OF THE BIG REVIEW AND PROSPERITY EDITION

To Be Issued Tuesday, Dec. 31.

Work is progressing rapidly and satisfactorily on the Gazette's big Review and Prosperity Edition and everything points to the production of the most interesting issue yet attempted in chronological matters.

Every important item occurring during the year will be reviewed; the deaths and births of the year will be chronicled; the buildings and improvements of the year will be reviewed; business matters will have attention; the national and world events will be summarized and the whole edition profusely illustrated with half tone cuts. One not familiar with newspaper making cannot realize the immense amount of work necessary in the compilation, preparation and making up of an edition of this kind. A considerable amount of extra expense is necessary in its production and it is not expected and not intended as a money making proposition. The Gazette will be well satisfied if it can but reflect the splendid conditions of the city and give to the outside world an idea of its actual prosperity as shown by occurrences of the past year. The business interests of the city, wholesale, retail and manufacturing are of a class which should make any citizen proud and the business men are alive, wide awake, pushing. Much of the city's excellent condition is due to their untiring efforts.

Last year the supply of the Review Edition was exhausted early and those who desire extra copies should anticipate their requirements and order at once, the price will be 5c per copy. Order from the office or your news stand.

An Increased Salary In 1908

If You Are Earning Less Than $1000 a Year You Are Earning Less Than the Average Man

During the past year on pay day, were you among those who were paid for their knowledge—for what they KNOW; or were you among those who were paid only for what they DID physically? Did you work with your brains or your hands? Take a moment to consider what an education would mean to you. Why plod along in the rut of everyday "humdrum," when you can so easily fit yourself for a better position, paying more money and commanding greater influence? Are you willing to admit that you deserve to earn less than $1000 a year, or is it only lack of opportunity that prevents you from earning more money?

HERE IS YOUR OPPORTUNITY NOW!

We offer you

A PRACTICAL BUSINESS EDUCATION

at a comparatively small cost and in the shortest period of time. Why not arrange to let us start you to acquire the profession of a bookkeeper or stenographer? There are hundreds of good positions waiting for the young man and woman who knows how.

NOT ONE OF OUR GRADUATES IS UNEMPLOYED

Many of our recent graduates are earning salaries of more than $1000. Some of our latest graduates began with $65 and $75 per month.

MONEY VALUE OF A BUSINESS EDUCATION

The average bookkeeper and stenographer earns $1000 a year. He works 40 years, making a total of $40,000 in a lifetime. The average day laborer gets $1.50 a day, 300 days in a year, or $450 a year. He earns $18,000 in a lifetime. The difference between $40,000 and $18,000 is $22,000. That is the value of an education in mere dollars and cents. The increased self-respect cannot be measured in money.
